

What we do

Health insurance policies are becoming increasingly similar, but there are a few small things that – depending on your situation – can make a big difference. That's why we offer policies that take account of a range of needs in order to provide everyone with the proper care. As a (regionally-based) health insurer, we contract care providers. When making our choices we pay attention to price, quality and whether the adequate care is being provided. We therefore strive to make the best agreements for our policyholders.

Our regionality brings a number of advantages:

- we know the care providers personally
- we have many policyholders in the region, which means we can purchase in bulk and thus at a more affordable price.
